c/o Gar Coulterman,
Irma, Oct. 26, 1949.

The Editor Irma Times:

Dear Editor: Happy greetings from an old "Printer's Devil" from the old Country who has been greatly interested in your smart little journal. My wife and I landed on Sept. 9 last at Montreal from South Africa where we had spent six months, and was enchanted with that country, but nothing has approached the warm and wonderful welcome that we have enjoyed here from the many friends and relatives. We have renewed contacts with lads in your forces in England and feel that it is worth all the travel incurred. My brother, W. Cole of White Rock, B.C., was on the station to meet us together with our niece, Mrs. G. Coulterman, and as we had not seen one for 47 years and the other the 36 years, you will not wonder at the great surprise given us. We hope to go on to Edmonton next week to see our other niece, Mrs. H. Cookroft and although partings are always sad, we will carry away very happy memories for the future. We were struck by the fact that Canadians appear to work harder than the people in Africa, but generally get more out of life.

I was apprenticed in 1894 as a compositor to Sir G. W. Triescoff, Lord Mayor of London, and have an union card of 50 years.

We have no fears for the Old Country whilst we have the invaluable support of such wonderful people as those of Canada. Let me assure you that England will yet come through, and far from fading out despite the moanings of Jermiah!

With all the best wishes for your paper and yourself in the future, we remain

Yours fraternally,
Wm. and Louisa Anderson.

We enjoyed Mr. Anderson's call very much and trust that both he and his wife will greatly enjoy their Canadian visit. Yes, we feel with Mr. Anderson that England will yet come through and it's the spirit such as he displays that will bring her through.—W.F.R.

JOLLY TARS AND THEIR SKIPPER

When the CBC sets up its microphones in Harmony Harbour every Sunday (CBK, CBX 10:30 a.m.), the Acadian Male Quartet and its captain, above roll into port with sea choruses varying in sentiment from lively pirate songs to sailors' version of hymns. Harmony Harbour is a CBC half-hour presentation of songs of the rolling main sung by the Quartet, with organ music by Majorie Payne. Narration with a nautical flavor is written by Frank Doyle, Halifax newspaper man, and read on the air by Syd Kennedy, manager of station CBH, Halifax. The picture was taken at the National Press Conference in Halifax, where one of the Harmony Harbour broadcasts originated. Left to right are sailors Robie Porter, Austin Gough, Syd Kennedy, Raymond Simpson, and Carl Riley.

The Voice Of Rural Canada

The CBC has helped to develop a number of farm programs, each designed to meet some special need of rural citizens. One of these, National Farm Radio Forum, began its tenth broadcast season this Monday, October 31.

The program offers listeners the opportunity of hearing the opinions of experts about rural social, economic, and educational problems of discussing these problems among themselves, and of hearing what other farmers across Canada have to say.

National Farm Radio Forum is a joint project of the CBC, the Canadian Association for Adult Education and the Canadian Federation of Agriculture. It is heard each Monday at 9:30 p.m. on CBK and CBX.

In format, the program varies from informal debates on controversial subjects between a chairman and two or three agricultural experts and farmers, to dramas about farm-family problems, performed by professional actors.

Speakers in the discussion programs are chosen because of their special knowledge or their particular point of view.

Basic to the pattern of National Farm Radio Forum is the listening group. Each Monday night from November to March thousands of farm people across the country meet in small groups to listen to the broadcast together, study and discuss the evening's topic and then decide how their mutual problems can best be solved.

Each group appoints a secretary to send a report on its conclusions to the provincial Forum secretary. For their discussions, the groups use as a guide the questions in the Farm Forum Guide, a weekly illustrated booklet containing an informative article on the discussion topic. The booklets reach the groups a week in advance of each broadcast.

Every fourth broadcast is an open night—the Guide is not printed and no discussion questions are prepared. On those occasions, the broadcasts take the form of a review of Farm Forum opinion on the preceding three topics, and a discussion or interview dealing with some current rural problem.

Juvenile Delinquency

THE SUBJECT OF JUVENILE DELINQUENCY has received considerable attention during the past few years and has come to be regarded as one of the most serious social problems of the day. However, statistics indicate that in spite of the fact that a great deal is heard regarding this subject, the rate of juvenile crime in Canada is decreasing. It was recognized that the war was responsible for many cases and figures show that in 1944 an all-time high was reached in juvenile crime here, when there were 11,758 major and minor convictions. At that time the absence from home of many fathers who were serving in the armed forces, and of mothers who worked in munition plants or in industries, contributed extensively to the high rate of juvenile crime.

Decrease In Crime Rates

Since the war the housing shortage has caused many families to live under abnormal conditions and this has been a cause of many of the cases which have arisen with children and youths who have broken the law. However, a number of factors have been working to bring about a decrease in juvenile delinquency throughout the country. The end of the war marked the resumption of normal living in many families and thus removed one cause of delinquency. In addition, communities throughout the country have provided facilities for recreation, parent education classes, psychiatric services and other projects planned to better conditions for children and young people. In several of the provinces the governments have enacted additional laws for the protection of youth.

Help Given By Police

Another factor which is known to have contributed a great deal to the lessening of juvenile crime is the sympathetic attitude given to this problem by the police. In many districts constables are appointed to deal especially with this work and much credit is given to the "police and youth" programme introduced by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and taken up by municipal and civic police in many communities. This programme includes lectures on the work of the police, and on citizenship, given in schools and before groups of children and young people. The police also participate in games, form athletic clubs for juveniles and visit Boys' Industrial Homes, in the course of this work. Undoubtedly the home is the most important influence in the child's life and it is there that they should earn respect for the law and the principles of good citizenship. For children who have been brought up with the proper attitude to these matters, the instruction given by the police in schools, and elsewhere further emphasizes the things which they have been taught, while for children who have not the advantages of good homes, the work done by the police is most valuable. The enlightened approach to most problems is through prevention and great credit is due to the R.C.M.P., and the members of other forces throughout the country who are effectively helping to prevent juvenile delinquency at this time.

Estevan Man Could Be Referred As "Lucky Joe"

ESTEVAN, Sask.—Joseph Phillips of Estevan really could have been referred to as "Lucky Joe," recently for he won a hockey pool amounting to $45 on the Toronto-Chicago game at Toronto. Later in the evening he was awarded a 1949 Plymouth car at the annual Rotary carnival.

See Increase In Hopper Infestation

WEYBURN, Sask.—Grasshopper infestation might be more severe in 1950 than it was this year, provincial field crops commissioner W. H. Horner said.

Mr. Horner said the cultural control method was the best way to fight hoppers, adding that shallow cultivation in fall or spring could destroy 70 per cent. of the grasshopper eggs.

Farmers should not seed stubble fields that were heavily infested with grasshopper eggs this year, he said. A hopper weather could double the output of the field pests.

Sheep And Lambs Bring Record Prices

The following are pictures of sheep and lamb lots that realized top prices at the recent annual sale at Moose Jaw, Sask.:

Top Right: First prize pen of 15 lambs (whitefaces) was entered by Mr. Brown, Antelope, Sask., and sold to E. S. Schneiders, Kitchener, Ont., for the top of the sale, $23.25 per ewt.

FUNNY AND OTHERWISE

President: "Why did you engage that man as cashier? He squints, has a crooked nose and outstanding ears."

Manager: "Of course. He will be so easy to identify if he ever abandons us."

A sign shop in front of a shoe repair shop displayed several styles of rubber heels, and a beautiful girl who was saying, "I'm in love with America's Number 1 heel." Underneath, in small feminine handwriting, someone had added, "Too bad, sister! I married him."

Customer: "You made a mistake in that prescription you gave my wife. Instead of quinine you used strychnine."

Druggist: "You don't say. Then you owe me 20 cents more."

Customer: "Could I try on that suit in the window?" Clerk: "We'd rather you'd use the dressing room."

Say, waiter, how long have you been employed here?" "About six weeks, sir."

"Then you couldn't be the one who took my coat."

"I'm afraid someone very near to you is going to be disappointed," said the crystal gazer.

"I'm afraid you're right," confessed the client. "I've come out without any money."

"I have a little attachment here for your wireless."

"That's nice of you, old man. What is it?"

"Well, it's just a bit of rope and a brick, and the river's the second turning on the right."

When the teacher asked John what George Washington was noted for, he surprised her by replying:

"Why do you think his memory was so great?" she inquired.

Replied John: "Because they erected a monument to it!"

Vancouver Man Invents New Licence Plate

VANCOUVER.—Permanent licence plates which do double duty as enlarged tail-lights have been invented by a Vancouver man and will be offered to the B.C. government soon. Inventor is 65-year-old L. J. Walsh.

Models constructed by Mr. Walsh consist simply of perforated glass or plastic, with numbers on the outside and a light on the inside.

By day, the device resembles a somewhat bulkier edition of an ordinary licence plate. By night, it is illuminated from behind by a red light at the rear, and a white light at the front.

"Renewal plates" shown year in and year out, are separate and removable, and could be of any distinctive design or color.

Mr. Walsh has patented the device in both Canada and the U.S.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

A GREAT SUCCESS Something That Summed Up Ellie's Life?

By ANNA E. WILSON

WE WANT something to put in the newspaper, Mr. Swinburne, that sort of sums up her life. You knew her better than most. The reporter sat at a desk and pen on the table. "I'm going on to get written-up on the fashion show at Mac's. Perhaps you'll have something for me when I get back."

Something that summed up Ellie's life? Mr. Swinburne had not thought of Ellie, not as a distinct person separated from her family, in years; not since she'd been married, and Ellie's husband had been dead. She must have been eight in Ellie's family. When he first saw her, she wasn't even pretty. Blue eyes that filled with tears without reason, but a good figure if she'd had any sort of clothes to show it off. Not having much of a life at home, it wasn't surprising that Ellie married young. Ed had one of the truck drivers at the plant where she worked. She made the best of what she had. Ed was good to her in his way, but life on his pay left no more for clothes than did her old job—what with furniture and coal and food.

He remembered, when Ellie's lost her first baby, how quiet she'd seemed. Frightened, as if all at once she'd been told that life might be too much for her. Ed had gone with the doctor not paid. Ed had bought her a new dress, something he'd seen in Mac's window, the exact color of Ellie's eyes. Made you feel good to see how pleased Ellie was, how her face shone when she touched the pretty silk, loving it even though she had no place to go to wear it. Ellie didn't go out much though. Ed used to take her to the restaurant with his friends in the evenings as much as any man. No harm in Ed. Sober and a good worker, but he left Ellie a lot alone.

Perhaps it was a good thing she'd had her family young. Five boys, and, as a sort of afterthought, a baby that didn't grow up. Seemed

Drought-Area Farm Families Get New Land

OTTAWA—More than 2,000 farms from prairie provinces drought areas are expected to move into Medicine Hat area of southeastern Alberta as a result of the impending irrigation project by the Dominion Irrigation Project.

Work will be started as soon as possible on the development and farmers from crop-failure zones will likely begin to go to their new watershed land next year, with most making the switch in 1951.

PTF authorities already have several thousand applications on hand. There are 2,600 from Alberta alone.
